Center for Ageless Living Plans Field to Food Event

Los Lunas, NM - A communal food event on Friday June 20, 2008 honors local producers and products and emphasizes sustainability in a garden setting on the campus of the Center for Ageless Living.

“We’re requesting community participation,” said Director Suzette Lindemuth. “This is a first for Valencia County and we’d like to make it an annual Summer Solstice Event to support healthy aging through an increased awareness of local foods.”

Field to Food, held on the evening of Summer Solstice under the evening stars, will offer entertainment and menu items based on local produce and ingredients available at that time. Vendors participating in the event include Hays Honey and Apple Farm, Amyo Farms, Simon Farms, The Old Windmill Dairy, Pasta Divina, Valeria Ashe, Wine Consultant, Mountain Marketing, Sysco of NM and Green House Rotisserie.

The Center is soliciting volunteers for assistance in the organization and implementation of the event, advertising sponsorships, musicians, servers and creative ideas and support; volunteers receive courtesy day passes at the Garden Gate Day Spa. For more information or, to volunteer call 505-865-8813.

All proceeds from Field to Food go to SC, Inc. a 501 (c)3, New Mexico nonprofit organization committed to sustainable communities for senior care. Tickets for the event sell for $40 and may be purchased
